After completing the module the student should be able to:

Learning Outcomes

Code	Number	Description
MLO1	1	Identify the key themes and concepts relevant to environmental health
MLO2	2	Discuss the relevance of these key these and their impact on environmental health

Module Content

Outline Syllabus	The module will cover concepts such as risk; communication; interventions; inequalities; globalisation and research in relation to environmental health. It will also include sessions around health and housing and noise and nuisance The module will look to provide definitions of these concepts and how they are integrated into environmental health
Module Overview	Within Environmental Health there has been a tradition to focus on the five key intervention areas: food safety; health and safety; housing; environmental protection and health promotion and health protection (sometimes known as public health within Environmental Health circles). In this module you will look to move away from this traditional model and instead you will examine the key themes and concepts that underpin these intervention areas.
Additional Information	Within EH there has been a tradition to focus on the 5 key intervention areas of EH: food safety; health and safety; housing; environmental protection and health promotion and health protection (sometimes known as public health within EH circles). This module looks to move away from this traditional model and instead will intend to examine the key themes and concepts that underpin these intervention areas.
