MLO2	2	Independently research, contextualise and apply practitioner techniques utilising documented vocabulary
MLO3	3	Recognise and develop collaborative, symbiotic working relationships, demonstrating stagecraft
MLO4	4	Identify technical considerations in live/recorded media practice, locating digital resources
MLO5	5	Assess and reflect on working ethics, practices and independent research skills

Module Content

Outline Syllabus	You will apply learned techniques from Acting I, Voice and Movement, including practitioner approaches, in a directed scene study presentation of a twentieth century naturalistic play. In addition, you are expected to engage with narrative, psychophysical realisation of character, contextual research and analysis. You will evidence and critique your developing methodology in an analytical Viva Voce. The stages of this module are: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Rehearsal: contextual research & analysis; engagement & application of rehearsal techniques • Scene Study presentation • Analytical Viva Voce In addition, the consolidation of Screen Acting enables the development of naturalistic acting styles to be applied in differing contexts and platforms. Selected material of study will reflect a consideration of diversity and equality concerning gender, age, religion, class, disability and ethnicity.
