Aims

To develop an understanding of the sociological explanations of the causes, consequences and responses to globalisation and inequality in a range of societies.

Learning Outcomes

After completing the module the student should be able to:

- 1 Demonstrate a clear understanding of the complexities of defining 'globalisation' according to a variety of competing perspectives
- 2 Identify a prominent global issue and explain the causes and consequences this issue poses to society
- 3 Evaluate the impact of alternative responses to a key global issue.

Learning Outcomes of Assessments

The assessment item list is assessed via the learning outcomes listed:

1000 Word Group Poster	1
3000 Word Individual Report	2	3

Outline Syllabus

Consider a range of definitions and measurements of 'globalisation'
An overview of slavery, colonisation in the creation of 'global world'
Outline of competing theoretical perspectives on defining 'globalisation' and explore inequality in a global context
Provide an overview of the 'globalisation' and consider the role of social movements
Introduce a number of case studies such as development, trade, gender and trafficking and explore the potential responses and solution to address these issues

Learning Activities

Lectures on meaning of globalisation, key theories and key issues
Seminars will provide space for discussion on key themes and issues

Notes

Through a series of lectures and seminars the process of globalisation will be explored and key theories that explain global inequalities will be outlined. Seminars and lectures will support students learning and enable the meaning of globalisation to be explored and the competing theories that explain global inequalities to be considered. Case studies will be used to provide examples of contemporary issues and the range of social action that can take place in an attempt to address these inequalities.
