The state in international affairs is an essential component to the study of International Relations. This module will guide you through its development in Europe from the 17th Century to the present day. We will explore how the state operated during this period, and question why it has been so resilient an entity for human organisation. We will also examine the impact of the end of the Cold War along with subsequent thinking have led to significant changes in how the state and its power are understood by the international community. A skills specific session will be incorporated in this module.
