Learning Outcomes

After completing the module the student should be able to:

Code	Description
MLO1	Assess key theoretical concepts which address the links between criminalisation, punishment and the management of social divisions.
MLO2	Evaluate the values, policies and impacts underpinning the management of social divisions within the UK criminal justice system, and allied agencies.
MLO3	Assess how social justice might be achieved.

Module Content

Outline Syllabus
This module will explore key theories around punishment, social control and social harm. Using a variety of case studies, the module will explore and evaluate how the state seeks to manage social divisions. Drawing on critical scholarship and activism in criminology and social policy, the module will explore how social justice might be achieved.

Module Overview

Additional Information

Drawing upon key theories around punishment, social control and social harm, this module will explore the state's management of social divisions. Using a variety of case studies, it will explore the reconfiguration of punishment across criminal justice, and allied agencies, and the impacts this has in relation to a variety of social divisions. It will encourage students to reflect on how a more socially just approach to social divisions might be achieved.
