Outline Syllabus

Philosophical, Political, Organisational, Legislative Theory and Policy perspectives Policing: Key Practice Issue. Critical Case review: Challenges and opportunities in the field.

Learning Activities

There will be two themes within this module-

-understanding the needs of communities and being aware of how to obtain information to cater for those needs.

-understanding the relationship between the needs of communities in relation to the evidence based policing.

The module will use practical experience, which will combine on-line learning with a substantial piece of community engagement known as a work placement/practice. In addition students will be encouraged to monitor their own learning in this module by developing their learning objectives and reflecting on the progress of the plans.

Seminars and online learning materials will be used to develop the plans for their engagement and reflection. The reflection will be used at key stages before and after the community engagement.

Electronic, seminar and in on-line groups will be used to further explore the issues raised in seminars, the practical work and through the students own reflection.

Students will be expected to engage in self-directed learning to develop their knowledge of the communities and organisations they will be involved with.

Notes

Students will be expected to plan their placement and obtain the necessary risk assessment prior to the commencement of the module. They will be given access to all the relevant material from May of Level 4 onwards in a dedicated area of the Programme Community Site.
