Module Content

Outline Syllabus
Module will typically include the following: • Student will select research project in discussion with appointed supervisor, and will develop the key research objectives. • Student will have the opportunity to present their initial findings at a dissertation conference.

Module Overview

The dissertation is an independent research project. Working under the direct supervision of a research-active member of staff, you will produce an extended piece of original independent research which will draw upon the latest developments in your field and demonstrate your in-depth knowledge. It will further enhance key transferable skills developed from the Level 5 Research Paper in International Relations and Politics, such as project management, effective research skills, effective communication, critical analysis and high-level evaluation of data, as well as professional time-management.
