Aims

This module aims to provide students with valuable experience in the education sector and may be of particular interest to those considering a career in teaching. Students will be offered the opportunity to apply the skills developed through their history degree in a real world setting, allowing students to enhance their key skills in presenting and communicating historical research to non-specialist audiences in an age and skill-appropriate manner. The core element of the module will be a structured work placement with a local Liverpool school. Support and guidance will be provided through workshops and mentoring.

Learning Outcomes

After completing the module the student should be able to:

- 1 Develop skills in presenting and communicating historical research in the classroom setting
- 2 Demonstrate an ability to prepare, evaluate and utilise methods for the support of history teaching in schools.
- 3 Critically reflect and analyse their own experience and the transferable skills attained.
- 4 Demonstrate knowledge and understanding of current issues relating to history teaching in the education sector.
