Aims

To enable participants to further develop their knowledge and understanding of the developing child in context.

To enable participants to gain confidence and critical insight into their own role and the role of others working within a multi- agency team.

To promote and evaluate the development of a common sense of purpose in supporting and safeguarding the interests of the child and enhancing team working to support children's development.

Learning Outcomes

After completing the module the student should be able to:

- 1 Provide a critical analysis of a selection of theoretical perspectives on child development.
- 2 Critically analyse the application of developmental theory and research to contemporary childhood issues.
- 3 Critically analyse ways in which developmental theory and research contributes to the understanding , influences and decisions made by practitioners who work within the children's workforce.
- 4 Reflect upon and critically analyse their own role and responsibilities within the context of other professionals working together to support children and families.
- 5 Provide a critical analysis and evaluation of the effectiveness of collaborative processes in the provision of children's services in their own organisation.
- 6 Critically analyse the processes that encourage and the barriers that inhibit effective inter-agency working.
