Aims

The module seeks to introduce students to the work of the United Nations in the maintenance and restoration of international peace and security. Upon completion of the module, students will have an understanding of the legal framework which governs the work of the UN in this area, and be aware of the influence of political factors upon the operation of this framework.

Learning Outcomes

After completing the module the student should be able to:

- 1 Demonstrate a critical awareness of the debates that exist in respect of the theory and practice of collective security within the United Nations era.
- 2 Demonstrate familiarity with relevant provisions of the UN Charter and controversies to have arisen in respect of their utilisation.
- 3 Undertake independent study and locate relevant source materials.

Notes

The role played by the United Nations in the maintenance of international peace and security is both an interesting and controversial issue. In light of much recent international conflict, the module is very topical and likely to evolve constantly with changes in the international political climate. The module adopts an interdisciplinary approach, considering not only the legal rules which govern UN activity, but also the impact of political factors upon the work of the UN. The module is likely to be of special appeal to those with interests in international affairs, politics or history.
