Aims and Outcomes

Aims	The module will support students in the identification of the most significant threats to safety and protection within the community. The module will facilitate students in the assessment and appraisal of tactical options that impact upon the community. The module will develop understanding around the challenges to delivering effective investigation and harm reduction in the community. The module will assess how personal resilience, self-awareness and decision-making contributes to success. The module will see students identify how they can make a difference and develop as an investigator based on understanding the threats.

Learning Outcomes

After completing the module the student should be able to:

Code	Description
MLO1	Assess the differences between short term actions and sustainable plans and formulate an evaluation of the benefits from different options.
MLO2	Critically evaluate the elements that make up a professional investigation taking account of balancing the needs of victims, witnesses, offenders and the wider community.
MLO3	Choose and determine appropriate communication channels to keep partners and the community informed about risks in their community.
MLO4	Critically evaluate all potential risks within a community and demonstrate how investigation contributes to policing outcomes achieved.

MLO5	Clearly and concisely communicate the impact that investigation has on police effectiveness both internally and externally.
MLO6	Critically asses their own skills and capabilities as an investigator and an understanding of how to strengthen their impact.
MLO7	Critically evaluate how they will build strong partnership skills and a commitment to evidence led practice in their role as an investigator.

Module Content

Outline Syllabus
Understanding how the composite parts of policing interact and differ in the impact upon communities Understand and apply relevant legislation when conducting a professional investigation Recognising the key challenges to police legitimacy in modern society – including racism, misogyny, corruption, terrorism and protest Understand how to apply ethical decision-making in complex scenarios Self-awareness, resilience and compassion Communicating the message Time management and decision-making

Module Overview

Additional Information
Lectures will provide the students with information and theories. Students will explore evidence-based policing in detail and identify 'what works' as they prepare and develop a presentation to deliver to a partner agency or community group on the threats to the safety of the community and how they will collaborate to reduce harm through professional investigation. Students will then apply their learning as they develop a reflective action plan to enhance their support to victims through better investigation and collaboration with others. This module outline must be read in conjunction with the module appendix and mapping spreadsheet which details the National Policing Curriculum content areas, learning outcomes and minimum content relating to each of the module learning outcomes, which can be found on the Module Key Information tab on Canvas.
