Module Content

Outline Syllabus	Learning Strategy A series of introductory workshop/seminars will cover a range of key critical perspectives relating to making theatre/performances. It will also touch on semiotics, historiography, phenomenology and other related concepts and approaches to performance theory relevant to making theatre/performances. It will subsequently go on to further explore making theatre in seminar discussion, and through shared viewings as appropriate, building on students existing knowledge base and using these critical perspectives as frameworks for analysis of the work chosen. Theatre making theories and practices selected will be agreed in discussion between the tutor(s) and the student cohort. It is also expected that students will utilise their own individual perspectives on specific crafts as studied in the concurrent modules Responding to the Cultural Climate 1 in these seminars where appropriate. This will include research and oral presentation in seminar on a chosen subject (most likely, an individual show or specific artist/team) in preparation for the assessed written case study. Indicative content. Critical perspectives o philosophy of aesthetics and poetics – virtual and hyper-realities o authenticity and theatricality o collective and personal performance and performing identities o feminist, gender, queer theories, race and ethnicity, national and cultural definition o interdisciplinary and integrated performance, o structure and form/post-structuralism (narrative and notional approaches), o meta-theatrics o audience reception theory (including pleasure and entertainment) o key concepts of applied theatre o theoretical and practical analysis o historiography o theatre creation pedagogy Theatre Making Theory and Practice The nature of study will be determined by the background, experience and interest of each student cohort, but in particular reference will be made to current theatre making in production, both new and revived, and students will be encouraged to see as wide a range as is possible. This module asks key questions of understanding practitioner roots and theory. Student will be invited to research and demonstrate a response to the understanding the roots of their practice. This research will then be disseminated as a performance lecture which explores their influences in relation to their practice. This can be undertaken in numerous ways and will be defined by the student in relation to their influences e.g., It may be improvised drawn from audience suggestions (Keith Johnstone) or they may create an original narrative – a conversation between Brecht and Stanislavski.
