Learning Outcomes

Code	Number	Description
MLO1	1	Explore the strategic importance of operating effectively as a leader in a complex and constantly changing professional PALE environment.
MLO2	2	Critically evaluate a series of strategic approaches to law enforcement within an international PALE context, and critically explore the concept of cross-border policing
MLO3	3	Using critical analysis skills, make informed judgements about unpredictable strategic PALE issues that demonstrate insight into, and understanding of, alternative approaches to law enforcement.
MLO4	4	Further develop a critical self-awareness of approach to personal leadership performance.

Module Content

Outline Syllabus	To what extent can the various legal and ethical frameworks within which policing takes place help provide a more universally agreed approach to law enforcement? How can academically researched leadership literature be appropriately utilised in order to bridge the gap between law enforcement theory and professional practice at national and international levels? How do law enforcement leaders maximise the learning opportunities from change management programmes developed and delivered within private and other public sector contexts? What, if any, aspects of international PALE leadership are unique? How do PALE leaders harness and maximise the opportunity to share best practices in law enforcement leadership across cultures, boundaries and borders.
Module Overview	You will explore the current and future strategic challenges facing policing and law enforcement leaders in the UK and overseas. You will do this by studying leadership approaches that evidence clarity of thinking, flexibility of approach and adaptability in addressing the often competing demands of our communities. This module focuses on the key role of leadership from a national and international perspective considering issues that include: discussions on whether there is a unified approach to policing and law enforcement that is cross-border in approach; the relationship between policing and law enforcement leaders within a highly competitive international law enforcement market.
